Abstract of the Disclosure

Embodiments in accordance with the present invention provide apparatus and methods for determining heat transfer characteristics of an actively cooled component, such as, but not limited to, a turbine blade.